(PRWEB) April 7, 2010 -- nOOKist® (<http://www.nookist.com>), the Internet's first confidential sexual history tracking service has partnered with getSTDtested (<http://www.getstdtested.com>), the industry's first online confidential clinic that exclusively focuses on the awareness and testing of sexually transmitted diseases, to begin offering STD Testing Kits and Services to its members.

nOOKist® currently offers the ability to store important STD test results and be notified when test results are due to be renewed. The partnership will allow nOOKist's members easy access to not only reviewing results on-line, but also offer the means to get tested for sexually transmitted diseases and obtain those results at any of the over 2,000 local testing facilities that getSTDtested supports.

"By approaching STDs from three separate angles: education, assessment and now easy access to STD testing and results; our company hopes that nOOKist® can further help combat the spread of sexually transmitted diseases and allow those not only living with sexually transmitted diseases, but also those who are at risk for obtaining a sexually transmitted disease, have easy access to the resources necessary to live a happy, healthy and safe sex life." said Robert Ianuale, CEO of Resorb Networks, Inc., nOOKist's parent company.

With April being National STD Awareness Month; nOOKist® hopes to expand and improve its efforts informing the public, raising awareness about STDs and the importance of preventing, testing for and treating STDs.
